SERVICES February 27th. Will Be Of Road Organization, Last Sale.

> The tobacco market in Garrard county and elsewhere will come to almost a sudden close as it started last December. The management of the Garrard Tobacco Warehouse are announcing in their large advertisement this week, that the market will close here on Friday February 27th.

It may be of interest to many to know that when it closes next week, over 4,000,000 pounds of burley tobacco has passed over its floors, which speaks well indeed for the first year.

Much headway is being made in the erection of another house in Lancaster before another season opens, as all concede that another house is just as important to take care of the Court House next Monday and talk increased acreage as it was to put up the first one.

Mr. Onstott is not connected with the govyear, he tells us, and not a single one was returned for correction. He Carried Out to The Letcharges a small fee for his work, but will have the satisfaction that the return will be properly made out under his supervision. This should be worth something as it has been stated that over $40,000,000 was illegally collected last year from income taxes.

DEDICATION OF DIXIE HIGHWAY

"And How To Stop Road To Be Scene of Celebration By Automobile Clubs.

> The Dixie Highway Association is at work on details of the dedication of the highway between Michigan and Florida which will take place some time during the late summer or the early fall. The reports received from the sections of Kentucky and Tennessee and from Southern Georgia and Northern Florida of progress being made on construction, of contracts awarded, and of the financial arrangements made to start work in the early spring, prompt the officials of the association to believe that the highway will be opened for all year round travel by fall of this year.

The place of the dedication exercises and the route to be dedicated will depend on which route is the first to be placed in good traveling condition. A disinterested committee selected from the leading motor clubs of the country will cover both the eastern and western divisions of the Dixie Highway between the Ohio river and the Georgia line in advance of the dedication and the route and place of dedication will be selected by them.

Leading motor clubs along the highway are showing their interest in the opening of the Dixie Highway by starting preparations for their participation in the dedication. SHIP CATTLE FROM MONTANA

(Prepared by the United States Depart-

An unusually large movement of cat tle out of Montana has taken place in 1919, according to the bureau of ant mal industry. Normally, the move ment of cattle from this state is be tween 200,000 and 300,000 head an-It is estimated that between 500,000 and 600,000 have been shipped, out for all purposes. Figures are not available for a similar comparison in regard to sheep, but reports from representatives of the department in the field indicate that between 400,000 and 500,000 sheep of all classes of range stock were moved out of the Northwest for feeding and grazing in sections east and west of the drought

These animals went first into the available nearby pasture lands in the Dakotas and Nebraska. Later they were moved into the middle cornbeit states, into Minnesota, Wisconsin, and the upper peninsula of Michigan, and still later into Texas and New Mexco. The movement into the two latter states continued on into November. The heavy snowfall that occurred early in the season overtook some ranchmen who were taking chances on the weather and they found it necessary to move their herds quickly. It is thought that enough railroad cars were made available to fill all orders. Stock cars moving west were given preference over dead freight.

Information that has reached the department indicates that the movement of cattle into New Mexico and Texas has been satisfactory, and with certain exceptions, the same holds true with respect to Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan. Reports indicate that a considerable movement of sheep and cattle into Michigan and sheep and cattle into Michigan and nearby territory for summer grazing is likely in future years. Feed supplies in the Northwest appear to be adequate for live stock remaining on plies in the Northwest appear to be the ranges and there is now pectation of serious shortage.

Exposure to Wind and Storms Is Cause of Much Loss-Protection is Not Costly.

Great sheep losses come through exposure to wind and storm. In all parts of the country farms that have sheep on them will do well to provide shelter from bad weather. These do not cost so much as to have the sheep die in the cold and wet. If we had all the money that is lost in sheep in any one year through exposure to storm we would be far richer than we are.

Asked To Provide For State's Historical Work.

$20,000

Seeking continuance for two years for the sole purpose of gathering and preserving Kentucky war records. Kentucky Council of Defense vill ask the General Assemby for $20,000 appropriation for the State body and $100 for each county, according to the terms of a bill to be presented this week.

Work proposed by the State Historian, Fred P. Caldwell, Louisville, includes a record of Kentucky's 100, ing the war, a history of all Statewide war activities and civilian ordivisions in which Kentuckians served in large numbers.

To accomplish this end two years will be necessary, according to Mr. Caldwell, who pointed out that only in about twelve of the 120 counties in the State are the records near completion.

"We must our record of the men who died in the service," said Mr. Caldwell, "of those who were wounded and those

Some of the items in the $20,000 proposed appropriation, which covers two years, are:

Salary of State Historian, $6,000; printing service records and copying them, $2,800; histories of camps and Kentucky divisions,$2,300.

In regard to the proposed compensation of $100 to each county historian, Mr. Caldwell said:

"The patriotic men and women who are serving as county war historians deserve the highest praise. They have given freely of their time and energies to the work. Many of them have even given their own funds for postage and stationery. It seems only right and just that some financial assistance be given them for their splendid work."

The Indiana Legislature has appropriated $20,000 a year for four years while Ohio has given $25,000 s a fund to start with.

In all there are at least thirtyight States now actively engaged in ompiling war histories.

Each Day of This Year You Will Find In The Herald

All the local, state, country and foreign news that can be obtained by the Associated Press, the Universal News Service, our special correspondents and our local staff; news when it is news; news when it is true, not otherwise. No other newspaper can give you more; very few newspapers will give you as much.

The Associated Press wires will furnish us with all the news of the United States and Europe, the European news will be supplemented by special cables from all the European capitals, by the Universal News Service. Our special correspondents will furnish us with news from the state, and our local staff will gather all the news of the city of Louisville.

So that you may be sure in reading the Louisville Herald, that any event, whether it occurs in Kamchatka or in Kalamazoo, if it has news interest, it will be in your newspaper.

The Louisville Herald, while it prides itself on being, primarily, a newspaper, realizes that there is more in life than occurrences that are of news value. People wish to be amused, instructed and entertained as well, and the Louisville Herald has spared no expense to do these very things for its readers. Its slogan is something of interest for every member of the family.

Mother and the girls will naturally enjoy the whole newspaper, but there are a few special features that are written for the women folks alone that we are sure they will find not only interesting but instructive in many instances.

The society notes will be of interest to many; the daily fiction will interest many more, and it should, as some of our best authors are preparing it. There are very few women who will not get something of real value from Cynthia Grey's column, whether it is a matter of advice, a cooking recipe, ideas as to entertaining, or any of the countless things that one wishes to know about. Simply write Cynthia Grey and she will gladly give you her aid in solving your

Then there is a daily series of editorials on things of particular interest to women by Charlotte Gilman Perkins; a daily installment of that interesting serial "Confessions of a Bride," Edgar A. Guest's daily poem "Just Folks," which makes such a wonderful appeal to all lovers of good poetry, and last, but far from least, the pleasure that women get in reading the advertising and the savings they also make in taking advantage of the various sales.

For the male members of the family we offer what we consider as good an editorial page as can be found anywhere. There the current events of the day, their cause and effect are touched upon by the trenchant pens of our editorial staff to the delight and edification of all our readers.

The financial page will give the current quotations on all stocks and bonds; the latest quotations on grain, cotton, produce, live stock, tobacco, oil and every commodity that is listed on the exchange. The modern man can not do business these days without the financial page of a metropolitan newspaper. Neither can the ordinary male citizen get along without the sporting news of the day, and in The Herald he will find, unqualifiedly, the best sport page published in Kentucky.

Every member of the family will enjoy the cartoons, particularly "Bringing Up Father;" "the Conning Tower," by F. P. A.; "New York Day By Day," by Mc-Intyre; the interesting articles by Frederic A. Haskin and the daily dramatic and movie criticisms.

There will be other features in The Herald from time to time, but the above are the regular features that you are sure of each day of the year in your Herald. Do you know of any newspaper that offers more? We doubt if you know of any newspaper that gives you nearly as much; a year's happiness for every member of the family, and all for five dollars.

If you are unfamiliar with The Herald we will gladly send you a sample copy. HORACE MADE GOOD

BY MABEL E. BRIGHTMAN.

"All ready for the sleigh ride, boys and girls," piped Jones, as he entered the schoolroom. "All here and ready. but Sally Hicks and she is always late," spoke a chorus of voices, that surrounded the little country school roots stove.

Sally was a bright-eyed little girl of sixteen, with cheeks like roses and hair that fell on her snoulders in golden curls. Her drive to school each morning was far from short, but Sally felt she wanted to go and must go home and put on her new brown coat and knitted red cap, that her aunt Johanna had sent her for her birthday the day before. Paul Rice, the young est trustee of the school was going and she must look her very best.

"What is the matter and the hurry, my dear?" spoke Sally's mother, looking over her spectactes, as Sally rushed into the kitchen. "Oh, nothing much, mother, only Horace has invited me to ride in that horrid looking I just hate old-fashion sleighs and old-fashion people anyway," splut tered Sally, "but then-I suppose I will have to go, as he has been so good to father since his illness."

Two o'clock came and Horace drew up in front of Sally's door, well protected from the winter's cold by his red scarf securely wrapped around his head, and his fine looking sleigh, as he supposed.

"Ready, Sally," shouted Horace in a hoarse voice, from the sleigh.

The drive to the little red school seemed long to Sally, as her thoughts were all on seeing Paul Rice, the sleigh ride, the lovely supper at Nancy Blake's and not on the question that Horace had asked.

Well-and just then Sally, jumping from the sleigh, forgot to even thank Horace, but he was soon tucked in and on his way home.

"Where have you been the last hour, Sally Hicks?" shouted a voice from the corner, "we want to get started."

Sally was cold after her long drive and stood by the stove warming her little white hands, first looking at Paul, who stood nearby polishing his fingernails, and thinking of the boy who had brought her safely there

"Well, I don't care anyway," she thought to herself, "I never did like old-fashion people and never will." Safe to say Horace was the object of her thoughts, and offender in comparison with Paul, the highly-polished gentleman, who stood by the stove. "We must get started now, boys and Paul helped Sally on with her coat and assisted her to the sleigh and they were soon cuddled together in the corner of the hay-bottom sleigh chatting and laughing. After the toasts at Nancy's class supper the boys one by one told of some great adventure in their lives and Paul's tales of his life of adventures held little Sally awestruck, while the others were amused. "The storm is growing worse, we must get started." Paul calling Sally to one side whiswill go back in Mr. Blake's new red sleigh, it will be much safer and besides, Sally, it looks a lot nicer." They had only gone a short distance and they came to the turn in the road when the horse jumped, and Paul became angry and lashed the horse, the blinding drift of the new fallen snow and the angry lashes of Paul frightened the horse, the sleigh overturned, and poor Sally lay helpless by the side of the road.

"Hasn't Sally come yet," Horace exclaimed as he walked into the cozy sitting room of Mrs. Hicks' home. "Jack and all the rest have arrived."

"It is a bad night and I think it right for me to follow the broken road to Nancy Blake's," Horace said, in a deep voice.

In a short time Mrs. Hicks had Horace well supplied with coats and shawls and started over the road to Nancy Blake's.

"Git up, Dobbin, we must meet Sally," Horace exclaimed to his faithful old white horse. The sleigh gilded over the fleece-like snow and Horace sight confronted him as he came to turn in the road. There lay the girl of his dreams unconscious had gone six miles when a terrible

"Sally, Sally, can't you speak?" And picking her up in his arms he placed her gently beside him in the old-fashioned sleigh.

The cold sharp wind of the winter's night brought Sally to consciousness and as she looked up into Horace's honest blue eyes she placed her tiny white arms around his neck and exclaimed, "You are the true hero of my Selfish and unselfish interests were coincident. This means that America again must do her share in keeping the world from starvation. We in this country have gradually dropped into the habit of electing good fellows to public office.

If they are possessed of some slight qualifications, we are fortunate. If they are without qualifications, we elect them any way-because they are "good fellows".

The prefessional politician is invariably a "good fellow". It is part of his stock in trade. It is necessary that he be such in order to succeed.

Because of this you find our public offices filled with professional politicians.

ANNOUNCES FOR CONGRESS.

Well Known Shelby County Democrat Enters Race For Position Now Held by Republican.

RALPH GILBERT.

Democrats of Garrard County will be interested this morning to learn of the announcement of Judge Ralph Gilbert, of Shelby County, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this, the Eighth Congressional District of Kentucky, in the State Primary Election to be

Judge Gilbert's candidacy comes as a response to a fast growing demand from Democrats all over the district for a new man to offer for Congress who is fresh from the people-a man who has the ability and the energy to make a vigorous campaign and carry the fight to the Republicans man who has never known defeat.

Judge Gilbert is such a man. He is not only a successful lawyer, For Precinct and City Offices __ $5.00 ed words and worthless prom- but he possesses the business qualifications and that idominable energy so necessary in the making of a Congressman of the first rank. He has only held one public office-that of County Judge of Shelby County-which position he filled for eight years with satisfaction to the entire citizenship.

A forceful speaker and an aggressive campaigner, Judge Gilbert, if honored with the Democratic nomination, can be depended upon to redeem the district from Republican controt, as it was redeemed before by his father, the late George G. Gilbert, back in 1898, which was the only other time it was ever represented by a Rpublican.

Judge Gilbert expects to meet and speak to the Democrats of Garrard county as the campaign gets under way and in the meantime he will appreciate a careful condideration of his candidacy at your hands .- Shelby-

Mr. Reynolds was a son of the late Levi and Rachel Reynolds, who preceded him to the grave about twenty years ago. If he had lived until the sixth of June he would have been 69 years of age. Seventeen years ago he was married to Miss Diana Perkins. Since that time he has lived in Madison county where he has made many friends and they are grieved at his sudden passing away. It is hard for you to have my mother all the time; but it is also hard for ne to have yours, dear; don't forget that.'

"Oh, I don't forget, Dan; I forget nothing connected with the whole affair. I only wish I could. It wouldn't e so hard if they did not quarrel so; and it isn't because they are tired as I I don't let them lift a finger. They offer from time to time, but the poor dears had their years of labor and deserve to rest now.

"Perhaps they would be happier if they did work, Jane," suggested her husband.

"Oh, you don't know what you're talking about!" Jane answered with

A year before her mother, Mrs. James, had decided to live with her married daughter. Mrs. James was right, of course; Mrs. James was always right. Six months later Dan had seen that it was necessary to have his mother, too, for she was failing in strength and needed her only son near From that day small irritabilities, endless arguments and tiresome dissensions had changed the harmonious atmosphere of the once happy Harrington home, and Jane was finding it almost more than she could he was surprised to see that Ji ne was still sleeping-Jane, who usually awoke early, prepared breakfast and then called him-and the clock hands mercilessly pointed to eight o'clock.

"Jane!" Jane stirred restlessly, but did not awaken.

"Jane!" Dan spoke again. "Girl, it's after eight o'clock." This time Jane opened her eyes. "What's the matter, Jane? Look how late it is!" And Jane awoke-awoke to an understanding of the hour; to the fact that she had overslept and that Dan was late; but more alert to the pain in her back and head than to anything else.

"I guess I'm sick, Dan; you'll have call mother. Dan was quickly out of bed and wnstairs tapping at Mrs. James'

"Jane's sick-will you come upstairs as soon as you can?"

Then he went to his mother's room. Mother." he said, "Jane is sick; her mother is going to her. Will you get me some breakfast while I go for the doctor?"

"Why, certainly, Dannie, I'll be right The thought flashed through Dan's mind that not for years had he heard his mother speak so cheerfully; but he could give no more thought to this now-there was much to be done. Dressing hastily, he went for Doctor Meade, who returned with him and gave Jane a thorough examination. "She is certainly a very sick girl, but nothing dangerous, I think. Evidently a complete pervous breakdown and she must have absolute rest and quiet "

"Had I better remain at home, doc

"Better not; far better not." said the busy doctor, as he piled small stacks pink and white and red pills on of pink and white and red pills on the dressing table.

Downstairs, Mrs. Harrington had prepared not only a tempting breakfast for Mrs. James and Dan, but had a tray ready to take up to Jane.

"Brace up, Dannie, we will bring her back to health before you know she's sick, son." A wealth of love and tender.

sick, son." A wealth of love and tenderness was in her tone, and Dan could scarcely believe his ears. Thanks, mother-and just be a little patient with Mrs. James, won't you? It wears on Jane frightfully to hear you two argue."

"Lan' sakes, son! We don't mean anything by our arguing-why, I think a heap of Mrs. James; and anyway, we will be too busy today, I reckon, for arguments."

Here Mrs. James put in an appearance looking frail and anxious. "Now, Mathilde James, don't you worry a mite—the doctor told me Jane "Now, Mathilde James, don't you her," said Mrs. Harrington, as she drew her friend and enemy into a chair would be all right with you to nurse before the table.

"Did he say so, Mary? But who will do the housework?"

"Goodness, me, Mathilde, don't you reckon I have still strength enough to wield a dishmop?" sniffed Mrs. Harrington with fire in her eye. But of sudden the fire disappeared. "Guess you and me, between us, Mathilde, can keep the house clean and take care of Jane, too, can't we?"

"You're a good woman, Mary Harrington-and I've always said sothough you have got a frightful temper," said Mathilde James, stopping to kiss Mary as she carried a pile of dishes to the kitchen.

During that day and those that followed, the two old ladies lived peacefully together, vying with one another in cooking, nursing and cleaning. Their minds were so occupied that there was no room for petty disagreements. Gradually was borne in upon Jane the realization that the keynote of the present harmony lay in the joy of the mothers in the round of duties with which they were daily confronted.

"We were all working at cross-purposes. Dan-but I've learned my lesson," she confidently informed her husband one evening.

"It takes you, dear, always to fin the right way in the end," her and lovingly assured her.

"In Washington the politicians never speak of Hoover as a Presidential candidate," the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post (Ind.) tells us, and the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger (Ind.) interprets this as "the biggest boost we have yet seen Scores of quotations similar to the above could be set forth, but the cold fact that political conventions, and not the people, select Presidential candidates, still remains. We are reminded by the Rochester Times-Union (Ind.) that "It is a favorite habit of some political leaders to favor the colorless candidate, Not that often harmful, always vio- who has aroused no antagonisms, to the more positive personality who has done much but who has antagonized in the doing." Opposition from the Republican ranks is also forthcoming. Friends of Republican candidates already in running and ready to be brought forward are frankly skeptical of 1Hoover's chances as a Republican. Among those who have favored the wers above all the candidates who Hoover boom with a frosty stare are Senator Johnson's backers, some of whom are in New York. These gentlemen, recalling Hoover's earnest plea to Californians to help elect a Democratic Congress to uphold the President's policies, are said by the New York Times not to take the Hoover boom seriously, and to believe "that his only chance of being elected President is by running on the Democratic ticket." The Montgomery Advertiser (Dem.) suggests that "before any Hoover 'boom' gets under way in the Democratic party we suggest that the gentleman be invited to declare himself as a Democrat. WIRELESS FINDS

Girl Long Missing.

Brother Sends Out Appeal By Air And Gets Results-Thirteen Years' Search Ends.

TOLEDO, OHIO-Located by a wireless telegraph message sent from her brother's amateur plant, Cleo Archer, 17 years old, has reached her mother's home here after being lost for thirteen years.

Soon after Lester Archer recently asked all wireless men in a radius of 800 miles to seek his sister he received a radio that said the girl could be found on a farm near Rockford, O. Young Archer went to the farm of Ellis Williams and claimed his sister who was mysteriously removed from the Allen county children's home thirteen years ago and has been sought by her mother in many cities.

The reunion of mother and daughter occured here last week and ended a search during which the mother, Mrs. Dorothy Archer, three times sought by court action to make the home authorities reveal the persons who took her daughter. Each time the mother failed to get the information and at last gave up the search.

Lester and Cleo were placed in the home near Lima during domestic difficulty between their parents. The girl, then four years old, had not been in the home a month before she was taken by persons whom the management would not identify.

For years the son, who is now 19, has helped his mother in the search for Cleo. Two weeks ago it occurred to him to send out an appeal from his home wireless plant. He asked all operators in his radius to take up the appeal and spread it troughout the country.

MORE AND BETTER PASTURES

Problem in Coastal Plain Section of , South Has Become Increasingly Important.

The pasture problem in the coastal plain section of the South must be solved to bring about agricultural utilization of these lands. both agronomically and economically. Unfortunately, say the specialists, facilities for experiments and demonstrations are wholly inadequate in attempting to work out a system of better handling of northern pastures. On the coastal plains of the South, unless the soils are much affected by drought, continue the experts, carpet grass supplemented with lespedeza makes excellent pasture. Golden crown grass is also excellent. Efforts are being made, with the aid of a new stripping machine, to place carpet grass seed on the market in adequate quantity. Several newly introduced grasses are
